Headline:
Remaining dry till the evening and turning unseasonably cold overnight.

Today:
A foggy start for many, lifting into low cloud which lingers into the afternoon. Feeling warm in the sun, but as further cloud encroaches from the north temperatures drop, feeling chilly as the wind picks up. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Widespread rain moves in during the evening, followed by occasional snow showers overnight. Temperatures plummet, leading to a widespread and harsh frost. Strong winds with risks of coastal gales. Minimum temperature -4 deg C (25 deg F).

Monday:
The morning clears for plenty of sunshine, but feeling cold in the biting wind. Dry for most, with the odd snow shower from the afternoon. Another widespread frost overnight. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Unseasonably cold and wintry through this period, with widespread frosts. Blustery snow showers near coasts Tuesday, with brighter spells inland. Conditions ease slightly on Wednesday. Windy and widespread rain Thursday.
